

Instructions For Storing Woodberry Furniture

All of Woodberry's outdoor furniture products are designed to withstand being left outside all year round, with the exception of the following products:

- Parasols

You should always put parasols down at night and at any time when it is windy. Furthermore, you should use the weather cover provided when the parasols are kept down for 2-3 days or more; this will protect and enhance the life of your parasol. During prolonged periods of excessively cold or wet weather, you should store your parasols under cover in a cool dry place. Do not store your parasol in warm dry conditions as this could lead to the growth of mold and mildew.

- Cushions

Whilst Woodberry employs up-to-date technology to ensure that our cushions are water repellent, Woodberry's cushions are not water-proof. This means that if they are subject to prolonged wet conditions (more than just a light shower) then they should be allowed to dry out in a warm environment overnight. You should store cushions under cover in a cool dry place during prolonged periods of excessively cold or wet weather; this will protect and enhance the life of your cushions. Do not store cushions in warm, damp conditions as this could lead to growth of mold and mildew.

If you choose to provide additional storage in terms of weather covers, then this will reduce natural fade and enhance the life of your outdoor furniture, although it is not strictly necessary.

If you could choose to bring any outdoor furniture inside or under cover for a prolonged period of more than 2-3 days, then you should store the furniture in a cool and well ventilated area. Keeping outdoor furniture in warm or damp conditions can lead to mold and mildew.

PLEASE NOTE THAT YOUR WARRENTY MAY BE AFFECTED IF YOU DO NOT STORE YOUR FURNITURE IN LINE WITH THE INSTRUCTIONS ABOVE
